MARCH 4, 1756. [Numb. 1132.]

The SOUTH-CAROLINA Gazette.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.

Extract of a Letter from Augusta County in Virginia, dated December 22, 1755.

OUR situation in this country has long been most melancholy, you have heard some parts of our distresses from the public news papers, and it is but a part of them has hitherto reached the ears of the public. Were we to enter into a minute detail of the miserable circumstances to which great numbers of the inhabitants, in several parts of the country are reduced by those scenes of blood and violence, that have been opened in this land of horror and desolation, they would be sufficient to excite compassion in every one who has the least share of humanity.

"At present things seem to wear an aspect something more favourable, and our drooping spirits begin to revive. Some of the Cherokee Indians are come in to our assistance, and we have a prospect of a much greater number in the spring, if those already arriv'd meet with such usage as gives them encouragement. We have also many small forts built in these parts, which will be of great use in case of any sudden alarm, and I think I am not mistaken when I tell you that there are near 30 in this county, about 4 of which I believe are by far the best that are in the whole province, unless fort Cumberland ought to be excepted, and if I am rightly informed, even that is not to be compared to them, notwithstanding all the expence it has been to the province. For your satisfaction, I'll give you a description of one of them, which I myself took on the spot. The form of it is four square, each of its sides are about 110 feet in length, at the corners are regular bastions or Flankers. The walls or sides are about 9 foot high, and between 4 and 5 feet thick, the consist of 2 tier of large logs, laid at some distance from each other, and well tied together, the space between them is fill'd in with earth, stones, &c. On the top between the two tier of logs, are fixed strong palisadoes, which reach about 7 feet higher than the wall, the bastions are 18 feet high, exclusive of the palisadoes that are on them, and they are divided into stories, in such a manner as will admit of fighting an enemy from 3 different heights. On the top of the walls, and within the palisadoes are walks formed of about 5 feet wide, which project a little way into the fort, these walks will be of great use in going round on the wall from one part of the fort to another, with expedition and without danger of falling down, and will at the same time give great advantage for fighting an enemy. I am informed that all the 4 forts are built in the same manner, and are pretty near of the same size, two of them I have seen myself. The Rev. Mr. John Craig, a presbyterian minister from the North of Ireland, who has many years lived in this county, laid the plan of them, and (to his honour be it spoken) has been the chief promoter of the work. Indeed the whole of the 4 forts, which could hardly cost less than a thousand pounds, have been built at the private expence of that gentleman and his congregation; he did not content himself with barely pointing out to his people, what was their duty, but like a good patriot chearfully contributed very largely out of his own estate, towards the necessary work he recommended to them. It were to be wish'd that all the clergy of this province had given proofs equally of their zeal for his majesty's service, and their country's safety. This instance, among several others that might be mentioned, is sufficient to shew how much good service gentlemen of the sacred character, who possess the confidence and affection of their people, might do to their country in these times of common danger and perplexity, if they were universally to exert their influence for that purpose, and, especially if they should, like Mr. Craig, lead the way by their own example.

Boston, Feb 2. Yesterday arrived a ship from Lisbon, and another from Cadiz by the last we have a letter from a gentleman dated December 4th, which says, that since his last (November 6th) they had had repeated shocks of the earthquake, but that no great damage had been done by them.

New York, Feb 9. We are credibly informed, that one of his majesty's ships of war, with 50000 l. sterling, in specie, on board, for the use of the forces now in America, and 2 store ships, are daily expected here, from England.

CHARLES-TOWN, March 4.

The last Day of the Races at New Market Course, after several Pocket Books had been very expertly drawn out of Gentlemen's Pockets, a Fellow was detected in the Exercise of the Art; and, that so ingenious a Man might not go without a Reward, several Persons there condescended to draw him thro' a Horse Pond, beat him pretty severely, and afterwards conveyed him to a proper Lodging; but disliking his Situation, he attempted to retreat from thence, and was so unfortunate as to fall upon the Point of a Centinel's Bayonet.—'Tis said, there are 3 or 4 of these Artists (who have travelled quite from Virginia) in or about this Town, wherefore ☞ Take good Care of your Pocket-Books, &c.

By a Letter from on board His Majesty's Sloop Jamaica, (dated Feb. 22d) then on a Cruize, we are informed, that neither she nor the Garland had yet met with any French Vessels.

We hear, that the Woman suspected to have murdered the Child, found as mentioned in our last, has confessed her being the Mother of it.

By Capt. Livingston, just arrived from New York, we have no later News from England than the following Paragraphs, dated LONDON, December 4.

THE Terrible man of war, admiral Holbourn, the Grafton, Medway and Culloden, men of war, are arrived at Plymouth.

It is said the beef that had been purchased in Ireland by the French, is converted into a more laudable channel; it being to be sent to the relief of the unhappy destitute inhabitants of Lisbon.

Tuesday —— Townsend, Esq; set out to go by land, with his majesty's letters of condolance; as did commodore Keppel to sail for Lisbon, he having 25000 l. in specie, with pick-axes, shovels, flour, and all other necessaries.

The 4 men of war, ordered to the protection of the distressed Portuguese, sailed from Spithead on friday or saturday last.

Letters from Cadiz, advise that the late earthquake was felt with as great violence on the Barbary coast as in Europe, from whence they expect to hear of great damages in that country.

TO BE SOLD or LEASED,

IN whole or any part, for any number of years, the Barony or Tract of land containing 12,000 acres, lying on Savannah river, about 30 miles above Purrysburgh, formerly the property of John Lewis Poyas, Esq. Any person or persons disposed either to purchase or lease the said land, or any part of the same, may treat with the subscriber at his house in Charles Town.
